BARGAIN

JONATHAN MARTIN DRESS

£29.99
SHOULD BE £60

EMMA SAYS

I ENTERED the changing room laden with posh togs.

A Chloe slip dress – which anywhere else would have swallowed up my entire budget – was a particular favourite at £40, even though I'd only ever be brave enough to wear it as a nightie.

And the shoes...there were so many and all with about 60% knocked off that I started to feel faint.

Pulling myself together, I chose this sequinned and sparkly embroidered dress by Jonathan Martin.

It was perfect for a Christmas bash and at £29.99 down from £60 it was a gift.

Teamed with my £16.99 peep-toe Zara shoes that should have cost more than double I went happily on my way – but not before trying a ridiculously inappropriate ballgown which left me speechless with its £40 price tag.

PETER WERTH SHIRT

SHOULD BE £45

ANDY SAYS

FOR my second effort, I decided to keep the shoes and change into a black shirt and grey slacks by Peter Werth.

I thought I was sailing dangerously close to 1970s Nationwide reporter territory but Emma convinced me it was the new "mod" look. Who cares? At least I came in well under budget at £69.97, representing a saving of £85.02 from the original £154.99 price.

MISSING: Peter Hutcheon

Crook riddle

A MILLIONAIRE British common has vanished from his sunshine bolthole in Spain.

Police say the disappearance of phone crook Peter Hutcheon may be linked to the attempted murder of a pal near Marbella.

Cameron Bell, 43, from Kilmarnock, who formerly worked as a "heavy" for Hutcheon, was shot in August but survived because the bullet passed through his abdomen.

Trick

Officers say Bolton-born Hutcheon, 42, who hasn't been seen for five weeks, received death threats just before he vanished.

He has a record of setting up high-priced fax lines which trick people into blowing up to £9 a time to answer simple questions.

His firm Planet Telecom made sales of £1.7million in a single year by luring punters into sending faxes to premium rate numbers.

Hutcheon moved to the Costa del Sol two years ago.

A police source said: "It is a missing persons inquiry but that may change in the next few days."

EARLY CALL: Bullimore

TB call home

VETERAN yachtsman Tony Bullimore has made contact with his wife for the first time in 11 days.

Bullimore, 67, from Bristol, was sailing across the Indian Ocean when the communications system on his catamaran went down on November 7.

Shipping had been alerted to look out for the 102ft Doha as his team had no idea where he was.

The adventurer and his crew of four were heading to Australia ahead of Tony's new round-the-world solo record attempt.

Signal

But yesterday morning he made contact with his wife Lale, after coming close enough to land to get a mobile phone signal.

Barry Pickthall, who runs the Team Bullimore control centre, said Tony only had a brief chat with her, to conserve power.

He said: "He spoke to his wife at about 6.30am and said everything was fine."

Bullimore was rescued from the Southern Ocean in 1997 during the Vendee Globe solo race, five days after his boat capsized.

WHAT DO I EAR?

THE ears of Bilbo Baggins, worn by Sir Ian Holm in two Lord Of The Rings films, could fetch £300 at a London auction this week.

Booby trap for Jordan

BUSTY beauty Jordan was so desperate not to make a boob in front of Prince Charles at this year's Royal Variety Performance she planned a breast reduction in time for the event.

But the babe, 28, was unable to have the op after catching a cold.

Jordan, real name Katie Price, who has launched a dazzling new range of lingerie for curvy women with George at ASDA, is performing at the December 4 event with hubby Peter Andre, 33.

But even though she'll still have her 32G assets, the mum-of-two is set to shine with an outfit she promises will be a knock-out.

In an exclusive interview with the Daily Star Sunday, she said: "I was due to have my breast reduction last week but I got a stinking cold and it couldn't go ahead."

"Now I'll have to wait a whole year because I'm booked up. On the good side it means the dress I'm wearing for the Royal Variety Performance 2006 will fit like a glove."

Katie and Peter's album, A Whole New World, is out on Monday November 27, with the debut single hitting the shops on December 11.

Theft puts IDs at risk

THE theft of a laptop has put 11million building society customers at the mercy of identity thieves.

The computer was taken from the home of a Nationwide employee three months ago.

Nationwide said it did not include PINs, passwords or transactions but names and account numbers could be used to take out credit cards or open loans in customers' names. The society apologised to customers and said it has tightened security.

But we can reveal that

by EMMA SHANKLAND

while he was being treated in hospital for horrific injuries, he should have been in court for sentencing after a savage attack on his ex-girlfriend.

In an exclusive interview with the Daily Star Sunday Samantha Kerry, 37, revealed Tilley is anything but the fun-loving lad he has made out.

Speaking from her home in Windsor, Berkshire, where she lives with ten-month-old son Callum, she said: "Everyone seems to find him funny and have given him sympathy for what has happened to him."

"People should know he's an irresponsible brute, a neglectful father and a drunken bully."

"In June he came home absolutely battered."

"He started hitting me and kicking me until I thought I would die."

"I managed to get to a phone and call my mum to get our son out of the house."

Bruises

"Then my brother Richard came and also got a beating."

"I spent the night in hospital. I was covered in blood and bruises, my eyes were black and they thought my nose was broken but luckily it healed."

"He'd beaten me up before but this time I kicked him out."

"Just weeks before, he'd been kicked out of the Army after testing positive for cannabis."

"He begged forgiveness but I soon realised he only said sorry to get me to drop the charges."

"In September he pleaded guilty to causing me actual bodily harm and to a charge of battery on Richard."

"He was due to be sentenced two weeks ago but it was postponed because he was still in hospital."

HARDMAN: Geordie gang leader Paddy Conroy looks out over Tyne Bridge. There are fears his threats in a TV show could spark a clash with arch rival John Sayers

WAR ON THE TYNE

Threats of gang carnage

POLICE fear a bloodbath on the streets of Newcastle because of a controversial TV documentary.

They are worried simmering tension between two rival gang bosses is set to spill over into violence.

The show, MacIntyre's Underworld: Get Conroy, features Geordie hardman Paddy Conroy. And it reveals his potentially explosive rivalry with a local "firm" run by his arch enemy John Henry Sayers.

Eyepatch-wearing Conroy, 46, who has just finished an 11-year sentence for kidnap and torture, blasts: "The Sayers are blaming the Conroy family for murders."

"He calls himself the Godfather of Newcastle - who is he fking kidding? They don't run Newcastle and they don't run me!" Conroy has forged links with Chinese triads and it is believed he's planning an attack on convicted armed robber Sayers, 42, and his mob.

A police source warned: "Things could explode in the city. Conroy is just asking for trouble going on TV and threatening the Sayers. They will take up the challenge, no doubt. Conroy is a volatile man with a short temper and the Sayers have been trying to provoke him into a fight for some time. They know he is unable to turn his back if they go for him. "This feud has been eating away at both parties and it now looks likely to end in violence."

by DOMINIK LEMANSKI

The show, on Five, is part of a series fronted by reporter Donal MacIntyre. In another episode he travels to nearby Teesside to film gangster Brian "Taxman" Cockerill, an expert in street-fighting and extortion.

Exiled

He also goes to Scotland, where he meets exiled loyalist paramilitary Johnny "Mad Dog" Adair. Speaking exclusively to the Daily Star Sunday, Donal said: "This is dangerous TV with dangerous people. These films reveal the parallel justice system that appears to operate in many of 21st Century Britain's towns and cities. "Characters like Paddy Conroy run their own communities just like the Italian mafia families did in New York."

MacIntyre's Underworld: Get Conroy is on Five on Tuesday at 11pm.

DIVA BABE RAPPED

HOME A-LOHAN: Staff in a Hollywood hotel were glad to see the back of 'little bitch' Lindsay Lohan, pictured during her visit to London last week

Tantrum Lindsay in hotel bust-up

■ TROUBLED Hollywood babe Lindsay Lohan is looking for a new "home" after a blazing row at the hotel where she was staying. The actress, who has battled against anorexia and admitted taking drugs, lived in rooms at the famous Chateau Marmont hotel in Hollywood. According to staff there, she wanted some of them to run around after her during her year's stay which cost around £300,000 for the rooms alone.

Sources say they were sick and tired of dealing with Lohan's diva demands. The star was checked in under the assumed name Lily Flowers.

■ A hotel security source said: "Lindsay was occupying four rooms and when she returned from a European trip she was downsized to only one. She threw a fit but was told there were no more rooms available."

■ by JENNY WATSON in Los Angeles

"Fine, I'll just move out", she said and management agreed she should. I'm not sure where she is now."

■ Some of the staff claim they gave her the nickname "the little bitch" for her diva demands.

One source claimed: "She called the concierge at all times of the night for room service. When told 'No', she'd throw a tantrum."

■ The star amassed so many clothes and freebies, the source claimed, that she had to spill out into three adjoining rooms. One room was packed with hair products and clothes.

■ Lindsay, who hosted the World Music Awards in London last week, sparked fears she was self-harming after being seen to have injuries to her wrists. Her spokeswoman said Lindsay injured herself when she fell in a bush.

IT GIRL CHARL

SEXY Charlotte Mears is planning an Italian Job for England striker Jermain Defoe. But she doesn't want the Spurs star to play in Serie A – she just fancies getting hitched there. During her exclusive photo-shoot with the Daily Star Sunday the blonde babe revealed how she'd love to become a footballer's wife.

Jermain, 24, has been smitten with Charlotte since he set eyes on her more than a year ago.

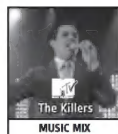

The pair had a chance meeting in a London club and have been inseparable ever since their first date.

Charlotte, 21, said: "I'm not a football fan – I'm a Jermain fan. I love watching him play but didn't have a clue who he was when we first met."

"My sister got married in Italy near Lake Garda. She looked so beautiful and the backdrop with the lake and mountains was magical. I've always wanted a big white wedding but I can see the advantages of getting married abroad."

Charlotte stayed at the Fortina five-star all-inclusive Spa Resort on Malta. Details on www.FortinaSpaResort.com or call 0800 917 3001.

Crafty lags use legal letters to smuggle drugs

PRISONERS are having drugs sent to them in jail using solicitors' letters.

They are getting friends and relatives to pass on their old legal correspondence to drug dealers.

The crafty scheme is successful because jail officials are not usually allowed to open prisoners' legal mail.

A source told the Daily Star Sunday: "Inmates involved knew officers were less likely to search legal letters."

"This type of correspondence is supposed to be opened only by the addressee and not the Prison Service. "God knows how long this has been going on and how wide the problem is. There are real worries that this is widespread."

The plot was discovered after

by ANDY GARDNER

warders at Feltham young offenders institute in Middlesex got a tip-off.

Inmates aged between 15 and 18 were sending old legal letters and envelopes to a drug-dealing relative of one prisoner.

He returned them filled with drugs – hoping warders would not search them because of "Rule 39", which protects prisoners' legal mail.

Mistake

In one bust, warders found cocaine wrapped inside a padded envelope. In another, cannabis was discovered tucked inside the correspondence.

But staff can open legal letters only if they believe the system is being abused. If they make a mistake they risk being sued under the Human Rights Act.

Wife killer Howard Woodin sued for "stress and anxiety" caused by warders opening his post. The source added: "If prison officers get it wrong there could be claims running into thousands of pounds."

The Prison Service has warned governors of the scam.

They wrote: "The Security Department of HMP Feltham is currently undertaking an investigation into the misuse of Rule 39 correspondence."

Jails are also writing to solicitors urging them to frank their envelopes with an official mark.

Feltham was recently in the news following a public inquiry into the murder of an Asian teenager by his racist psychopath cellmate.

Six years ago, 19-year-old Zahid Mubarek was bludgeoned to death by Robert Stewart.

The public inquiry earlier this year found 186 individual and "systemic" failures led to the murder.

TV FUNNYMAN
PETER KAY has shunned the bright lights of the West End's hit musical The Producers. The soft star reckons he'd get too homesick so will only appear in the Manchester show. He said: "It's great that way as I can have me tea at home and just pop along to work. My family can even come with me."

IT'S not looking good for revived boybanders Upper Street as they might be about to flop AGAIN. DANE BOWERS, DANNY WOOD, BRADLEY McINTOSH and JIMMY CONSTABLE have all been starring on MTV's reality show Totally Boyband but were recently heard moaning: "We've had hardly any radio play because producers wanted to make us look like sad losers rather than credible artists – we're gutted."

Troubled Kerry's best pal is.. HER MAN'S EX LOVER

GOOD BUDDIES: Kerry and new friend Louise Oortwyn, who dated Kerry's fiancé Mark Croft for six years and above right, Kerry and Mark are so happy together

Picture: DAVID RICHARDS

KERRY Katona has sparked up a bizarre friendship as she battles through her troubled pregnancy - with her fiancé's ex-girlfriend.

The former pop babe has run out of mates she can trust after a string of pals - and even her own mum - sold lurid stories to the papers about her life with husband-to-be Mark Croft.

But now we can reveal she is putting her problems behind her after becoming mates with Louise Oortwyn, who had a six-year relationship with Mark, 35.

Louise, 28, who says at first she was jealous of Kerry's romance with Mark, insists they are now the best of friends.

Blonde Louise, the mother of Mark's five-year-old daughter Keeley, said: "Kerry has been through so much and needs a good friend."

Hurt

Kerry, 26, was thrown into turmoil two weeks ago when mum Sue, 47, told a downmarket rag Mark was a drug dealer and spoke of Kerry's drug habits and failings as a mum.

But Louise, from Warrington, Cheshire, said: "I can't understand why Sue and the others would do that."

"Kerry is so hurt. She feels so alone - like she can't trust anyone."

"She keeps crying and asking, 'Why does everyone I care about have to do this to me? Why do they want to destroy me?'"

"She'll never forget the betrayal but she says, 'Your mum is your mum. No matter how hard things are I'll always love mine'."

"It's weird but we've grown very close and I hate seeing her so unhappy."

"She just wants to go back to being a normal girl from Warrington and I guess being with me reminds her of when she was just that."

Louise says she fears all the upset will affect Kerry's pregnancy.

She said: "When I read the things Sue said I thought, 'Oh my God! Kerry's going to end up back in hospital over this'."

"She's already had two scares with the baby."

Louise even helps care for Kerry's daughters Lilly Sue, three, and Molly, five, to give her a rest.

Break

"Kerry has been worn out. I've had Molly and Lilly Sue stay over here a few times to give her a break," she said.

"They are lovely girls and they get on really well with my daughter Keeley."

"They're going to be sisters when Mark and Kerry get married so it's good that we are all close."

"When Mark and Kerry first got together I was upset. But he and Kerry are happy together and I'm over the moon for them."

"Kerry's a great girl, a fantastic mum and a very good friend."

Give us a brake

THOUSANDS of Fiat Punto cars have been urgently recalled after some models suffered corroded brake pipes.

The problem is on Series One Puntos built between 1994 and 2002.

In a letter to customers Fiat warn the pipes could crack during "aggressive environmental conditions and where ice prevention road salt is used".

Early

They say the recall is precautionary but want owners to treat the matter "urgently".

One dealer said: "We have inspected thousands of cars and so far we have been through the registrations 'N' to 'V' and have now reached 'W'."

It's the early registrations we've had the biggest problem with."

The Punto was European Car Of The Year in 1995 and more than 50,000 have been sold in Britain.

HEAD BANGER

PATRICIA Pereira, 21, had a row with her estranged hubby - and survived after he shot six bullets into her head in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

WAR ON BEASTS IS A BEAUTY

My Verdict...

GEARS OF WAR

More blood than a vampire's fondue

94%

THE phrase "genre-defining" is bandied about in the media far too often.

There have been only a few modern examples of real genre-defining achievement – the Beatles defined psychedelia and Gorden Kaye defined comedy.

Yes, Gorden Kaye defined comedy! I challenge anyone to watch him as René in 'Allo 'Allo and suggest otherwise.

But to gaming and the much-hyped Gears Of War (GOW), out now on the Xbox 360.

Venture on to any online GOW forum and that phrase "genre-defining" slaps you in the face like an oiled bridesmaid at an Essex wedding.

I haven't seen this much publicity since the Pepsi Challenge. So just what's the deal?

I've spent every waking hour of the past week putting GOW through its paces (my mother thinks it's a strange job, too) to bring you an honest, balanced verdict.

So here it is. This game is rather good. In fact, it's absolutely sensational. Like all shooters, GOW lives and dies on its multiplayer and that is its outstanding feature.

GOW is a third-person shooter set in a future where mankind is being threatened by the Locust Horde, beasts that have risen from the depths of the earth. You play Marcus Fenix, a disgraced war veteran – he was probably caught stealing a digestive from the mess hall.

By making the game third person, the developers let you feast on the most impressive visuals I can remember, as dilapidated cityscapes mix with ancient temples.

Where the game really comes alive is in the realistic combat, as you advance through levels, ducking, crouching and covering before unleashing bullets on your unsuspecting foes.

There are sniper weapons, machine guns – and a monster chainsaw!

Blood

Has there ever been a more gruesome death in gaming than GOW's chainsaw? With blood bursting out of your victim's chest like a jam-filled water bomb, I think not.

The single-player story line will keep you glued to your console for weeks.

The game's legs, however, reside in its multiplayer, which makes full use of Xbox Live.

Four-on-four death matches require lots of strategy as you stalk your adversaries, creeping up behind them before plunging a 4ft electric woodcutter in between their shoulder blades.

It may not be genre-defining but it certainly comes close.

IT'S your last chance to book your place in the final of the Daily Star Sunday PGR3 competition. The winner will walk away with an HDTV and five games for the 360. To race, add StarGamer360 to your friends list. The heat will be raced at 7pm tonight.

WIN A SAMSUNG TV AND GEARS OF WAR BUNDLE

I WAS planning to give away a toaster and a Teasmal this week but I've opted for this Samsung 26in HDTV, a Gears Of War faceplate and a copy of the game instead.

To be in with a chance of winning, answer this simple question. Gears Of War pits man against a nightmarish race of creatures that surface from the bowels of the planet...who are they?

A) The Locust Horde
B) The Conservative Party
C) Readers of the Daily Mail

Who's the sexiest woman in the world? YOU DECIDE

AGGY'S HOT

THIGHLY RATED:
Stocking thriller Christina's picked up loads of votes

CRACKING Christina Aguilera has emerged as the pacesetter in our hunt for the world's sexiest babe – but that's no surprise when she looks this hot! We asked for your nominations when we kicked off the contest last week. And you didn't disappoint.

Our office has been swamped with your top tips for the title all the best babes want.

Christina's racked up loads of votes but

by BILL FRANCIS

our own Kelly Brook and Hollywood honey Angelina Jolie aren't far behind.

And Daily Star Sunday discovery Malene Espensen and Girls Aloud's sexy Sarah Harding are sitting pretty too.

But don't let others influence you – we still need YOUR votes. Candidates don't even have to be famous – they could be a pal, wife or girlfriend. Last week someone even voted for "Geoff's mum"! So put your thinking caps on because it's time to study the form.

Do you prefer curvy or trim? Redhead, blonde or brunette? A huge Hollywood star or the girl down the chip shop?

It's up to you to tell us.

And just to make it even more fun, we've a fantastic prize to give away to one lucky voter.

Shaken outfitters stirred back to life by that film

007's pulled us out of the shirt

NEW James Bond Daniel Craig has saved Prince Charles' favourite tailor. Turnbull & Asser were left shaken AND stirred when their elderly customers started dying off in their droves.

But since latest Agent 007 Daniel got logged up in their gear – and wore a £245 Casino Royale Limited Collection shirt and bowtie for the premiere – sales among younger men have soared.

A source revealed: "The last few months have been crazy. We even fell asleep in our seats at the premiere because we were so tired."

"Daniel Craig is the perfect James Bond and a real gentleman. He looks really fabulous in our shirts and has breathed new life into the company. Our clients are incredibly loyal and stay with us for years.

by EMMA SHANKLAND

"But sadly many of them have been getting on a bit. Daniel changed all that and he's brought in a load of new clients."

The world-renowned shirtmaker has been one of Bond's best-kept secrets. They've kitted out the super spy since 1962 when Dr No, the first Bond movie, was made.

Prince Charles, Michael Caine and Winston Churchill have also worn the label. And Casino Royale star Craig, 38, wowed crowds at the Leicester Square premiere last week in a Turnbull & Asser shirt teamed with a Ralph Lauren suit.

He said: "I'm very lucky to be given such nice things to wear."

TAKE A BOW: Daniel Craig, left, has helped save the brand

I WANT BOND ROLE SO BADDIE!

Andy has a monster wish

ROLE CALL: Andy's a master monster

HE'S played King Kong, Gollum and even Moors Murderer Ian Brady.

But British actor Andy Serkis still has one more monster wish – to play a Bond baddie.

The 42-year-old says he's desperate to be 007's next arch-enemy alongside his pal Daniel Craig.

"Danny Craig is a good mate of mine and I can't think of anyone better suited to play Bond," he said. "I would absolutely love to play a Bond villain."

Suit

He's already had a taste of playing a Bond-style baddie when he took on the role of the evil Mr Grin in the teen spy flick Stormbreaker.

And he reckons when Daniel finally hangs up his tuxedo the blond star of that film, 16-year-old Alex Pettyfer, could be the right man to take over.

"Alex did a pretty good job as Alex Rider, he was pretty cool," he says.

"So when he comes of age, he could be a great Bond."

JAMES BLOND: Alex Pettyfer could be a future 007

by ANDY LEA

As he waits his call from the Bond producers, fans can see more of Andy's amazing performance as King Kong when a longer version of the hit film is released on DVD.

Before donning his suit to play the 25ft ape, Andy researched the animals' behaviour for months.

He spent time in Rwanda and even climbed into a cage with a gorilla in London Zoo. He's brought the same dedication to realism to all his monster roles.

And while preparing for his controversial role as Ian Brady in the recent Channel 4 TV film Longford, he courted controversy by saying he wanted to meet the killer.

"I didn't think there was any point in just playing him as some Hannibal Lecter psycho," he said.

Andy plays yet another villain – a "hit-rat" called Spike – in his latest role in Wallace and Gromit makers Aardman's new animated film Flushed Away.

Face

And he is currently showing his own face starring alongside Scarlett Johansson, Hugh Jackman, Michael Caine and David Bowie in The Prestige.

As well as playing a Bond villain, Andy is also hoping to play Gollum once more.

Director Peter Jackson, is rumoured to be planning a prequel to the Lord Of The Rings and Andy said: "If he does, I hope he'll ask me to do Gollum again."

King Kong Deluxe Edition is on sale now.

SMACKER: Toni and Paddy kiss

EMMERDALE

Toni's not so lonely

THINGS look up for troubled Toni Daggert when a night out with Paddy Kirk turns to romance.

The vet is jealous when he sees Toni (actress Kerry Stacey) being chatted up.

Paddy (Dominic Brunt) takes the bull by the horns and snogs the busty barnmaid.

An Emmerdale insider revealed: "They go out for the night and Toni gets some attention from the local lads."

"But they then lose interest and good old Paddy offers her a shoulder to cry on."

After the burns she suffered when Delliah Dingle threw a pan of boiling water over her, Toni had feared she would never get her man.

ITV1 viewers will see the snog a week on Friday.

Linda goes bats

HERE'S Linda Robson as you've never seen her, making a guest appearance in The Bill - as a baseball-bat wielding crack addict!

Linda, best known for her role as Tracey Stubbs in BBC1 comedy Birds Of A Feather, plays mad Christine Howarth.

Police are called to her house after she catches her husband in bed with younger model Julie Barnes (actress Nicola Stapleton).

Crazy Christine is arrested after she takes a baseball bat to her love rival's head.

But, as our exclusive picture shows, she gets her hands on the bat after a power cut leaves the custody office in chaos.

An insider at The Bill said: "Linda is amazing in the role - it's a million miles away from her Birds Of A Feather days."

The drama unfolds on ITV1 on Wednesday.

SOAP

HOME AND AWAY love cheat Kim Hyde is caught out by fiancée Rachel Armstrong (Amy Matthews) when she overhears him talking to his lover. The bungling nurse (Chris Hemmings) targets to put the phone down and Rachel hears him whispering sweet nothings to his mistress Kim Hunter (Amy Murray). An insider said: "It's a bombshell."

HOLLYOAKS

SMITTEN Will Hackett becomes so obsessed with winning the heart of sexy Zoe Carpenter he sets up a secret spy camera.

The scheming student is so gutted Zoe (Zoe Lister) has fallen for Zak Ramsey he starts watching her every move.

Then Will (Oliver Farnworth) steals her prized possessions and sets up Zak (Kent Riley) by planting them in his room.

A Channel 4 insider revealed: "The plan works a real treat. Zoe is heartbroken and Will is there to pick up the pieces."

Will begins his spying mission in the episode a week on Thursday.

KEVIN Wicks might have become an Albert Square favourite but there's no way he will be hanging around as long as Ian Beale.

Actor Phil Daniels, who snapped up the role last year, says he loves playing the big-hearted rogue.

But he admits he could not cope with growing old in Walford like co-star Adam Woodyatt who plays chipper boss Beale.

He said: "I don't know how people like Adam, who've been in the show for years, cope."

"I won't be doing it for 21 years as it's hard when you just want to be left alone."

CILLA'S BLACK DAY AT THE DOCS

BODY BLOW: Cilla is told the horrifying news

THIS is the devastating moment when permanent loudmouth Cilla Battersby is told she has skin cancer.

The gobby mum, played by Wendi Peters, is stunned by the diagnosis and dashes to daughter Fiz for support.

But little does she know that while she is struggling to come to terms with the deadly disease, husband Les (Bruce Jones) is secretly romping with her best pal Yana Lumb (Jayne Tunncliffe).

Double

PSYCHO Robert Robinson's reign of terror reaches a dramatic climax when a case of mistaken identity leads to the killing of his twin. Residents panicked when the fiend (Adam Hunter) escaped from prison.

And when Max Hoyland (Stephen Lovatt) thinks he's spotted him he drives his car on to the pavement and runs him down.

But later, when the lad dies in hospital, they realise it's Robert's twin Cameron.

The drama will be screened on BBC1 on Tuesday.

CORONATION ST.

Daft Les thought Cilla's odd behaviour was down to her playing away.

But it was caused by the stress of keeping her illness a secret.

So when he discovers the truth Les flies into a guilt-fuelled rage and wrecks Cilla's sunbed.

Awful

A Street insider said: "When Fiz (Jennie McAlpine) breaks the news Les is distraught. He feels awful about his fling with Yana and smashes up Cilla's beloved sunbed in the street."

"He is completely beside himself with guilt and the whole family find it very difficult to cope."

"Viewers will see a different side to Cilla as she battles with cancer. It is really emotional."

The dramatic scenes will be screened on ITV1 a week tomorrow (November 27).

I COULDN'T help feeling sorry for those poor Kazakhs who unwittingly starred in the new Borat movie.

I love Sacha Baron Cohen and think the film is hilarious but surely Hollywood producers could have paid those poor villagers more than £30 for four days' graft?

Especially that one-armed bloke who had to wear a dildo on his stump.

I DON'T think I'll trust any picture in a magazine ever again after seeing your exposé on how sexy photos are retouched on computer.

I've probably been fancying boilers for years.

AS a regular at Luton's Kenilworth Road, I am absolutely furious with Mike Newell for his comments about women officials. Us female fans help pay his wages by forking out at the turnstiles week in and week out.

If he doesn't think we should be in the ground, the chairman should take the appropriate percentage out of his wage packet right now.

A YOUNG man walks on to the stage of Stars In Their Eyes on crutches, with a plaster cast from his feet to his hips.

Matthew Kelly introduces him as Simon. "It's very brave of you to come out here," says Matthew.

"Please tell the audience what happened?"

"Well," replies Simon, "about a year ago, I was driving with my uncle when we had a really bad accident. Unfortunately my uncle was killed outright but I survived."

"I was trapped in the car for six hours before I was eventually cut free but the doctors couldn't save my legs."

"That's terrible. But you have legs now. Are they artificial?" asks Matthew.

"No, Matthew, with all the advances in medical science, they could graft the bottom half of my dead uncle's body on to mine. As you can see the operation was successful. I've been having physiotherapy for six months and hope to be walking again by Christmas."

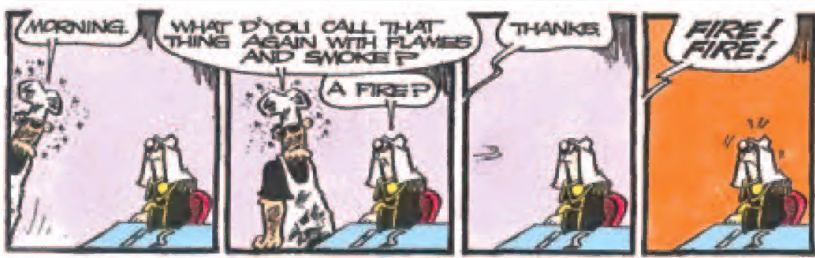

A huge round of applause erupts from the audience. Kelly responds with: "That's an unbelievable story. So tonight, who are you going to be?"

"Tonight, Matthew, I am going to be Simon and Half-uncle."

£445m swoop on smugglers

SOCA SCORES COKE BUST

by NEIL CHANDLER

BRITAIN'S Serious Organised Crime Agency – SOCA – has had its first big successes against the drug barons.

It has smashed four cocaine gangs using a smuggling route from Latin America to Europe.

Police grabbed more than eight tonnes of the drug with a total street value of £445million.

Spanish police, acting on a SOCA tip, stopped the British-registered catamaran Tatibat off Ibiza. On board were 2.4 tonnes of cocaine worth £200million on the streets.

Arrested

The UK-registered Spes Nostra was stopped off the Canary Islands by Spanish Customs. It carried cocaine worth £150million.

SOCA was also involved when Spanish police raided two yachts, one in San Antonio and the other at Denia, north of Benidorm. They HAUL: Bales of cocaine seized on a drug smugglers' boat found cocaine, worth £35million, and arrested eight people.

In Liverpool SOCA officers raided four homes of alleged drug ring members.

The Royal Navy boarded a supply ship, the MV Orca II, off the Cape Verde Islands and netted cocaine worth £60million.

SOCA, dubbed Britain's FBI, was also involved in that bust. The agency was hit by claims of internal rows and staff walking out shortly after it was set up in April this year by then Home Secretary Charles Clarke.

It monitors British yachts which sail from the UK across the Atlantic, pick up cocaine off the coasts of Colombia or Venezuela and return to Europe, aiming to land the drugs at tourist hot spots in the Med.

WISHY WASHY: Telly babe April Scott cools off while playing dirty Daisy in a new Dukes Of Hazzard movie. The great Scott promises a rare treat with lots of scenes featuring naked girls. And she's a real splasher herself, as our pictures show

April show Down and dirt

by MIKE PARKER in Los Angeles

GAME show sex bomb April Scott is getting down and dirty on the farm — as the new Daisy in a sexed-up Dukes Of Hazzard movie prequel.

April, 27, has been plucked from her role in the US version of Deal Or No Deal to step into Jessica Simpson's famous high heels as the hell-raising beauty.

The dark-haired babe, raised on a farm in her native Missouri, has been muck-raking with her co-star, country legend Willie Nelson, to get in character.

She plays Daisy as a tomboy teen who becomes sexually awakened in Dukes Of Hazzard: The Beginning, which is out next year.

Nelson, 73, plays gnarled old Uncle Jesse in the film.

LEA-PING: The Dukes' car was na which is being shot on a mock country ranch in Los Angeles.

April said: "It's a huge step following an established star like Jessica, so Willie's been putting me at ease telling the filthiest stories imaginable."

"Some of them are about household names, so we're really rolling in the dirt, figuratively speaking. He's a really cool guy and a fantastic actor."

"Daisy starts off kind of book-smart and tomboyish, just like
